A guide to parenting a young adult

by Gill Hines and Alison Baverstock

£14.99

ISBN: 978 0 349 40446 2

Gill Hines is an educator of huge experience. She has worked with a large number of parents, young people and teachers, offering workshops, mentoring and support in a wide variety of issues.

Dr Alison Baverstock is an academic, author and mother of four, who met Gill through participation in one of her workshops. Both are regularly interviewed in the media about parenting, families and issues to do with young people.

Later! offers a unique toolkit for developing autonomy, resilience and responsibility in your 16 to twenty something young adult to assist their growth towards independence as well as a reassuring and helpful support for regaining your own.

- Packed with strategies, exercises and question-and-answer sections, this book is user-friendly and entirely practical. It considers the hopes and plans of parents and children alike and, in the process, demonstrates how to 'move on' while sustaining a supportive, happy relationship.
- Uniquely explores the situation from both the young person's and the parents' point of view.

Foreword by Sandi Toksvig

'Parenting young adults today is an increasingly tricky business. With so many uncontrollable outside influences coming into play, doubts and dilemmas abound. This book will help you navigate a way through them'

- Sue Cook, writer
